Emden, Scourge of Eastern Sea, Rivals Career of the Alabama

LONDON, Nov. 10. THE German Cruiser Emden has contributed to the history of the war one of its most remarkable chapters. For sheer audacity and success it has few parallels-certainly none since the Ala bama, the famous old Confederate warship roamed the seas. Twentytwo ships, mostly British, have been sunk, and one has been captured by the German cruiser. Since early in August the Emden has been at work. Most of the time she was preying on British shipping in the Indian Ocean, but late last month she suddenly appeared at Pe-nans, on Malacca Straits. It was here that the Emden performed her most daring feat. A fourth smokestack was rigged on her deck and a Japanese flag run up. Thus dis-guised, she steamed boldly into the harbor, passing unchanllenged under the British guns of the fort, and fired torpedoes which sank the Russian cruiser Jemtchug and a French destroyer. Then she took to her heels and escaped unscathed through the straits. The vessels destroyed by the Emden had a total value of about $4,000,000, exclusive of their cargoes. The Emden's largest guns were only 4.1 inches. Her speed of 24.5 knots was her French and Japanese warships had been attempting for weeks to her career. It is assumed that she has obtained sufficient food and fuel to meet her needs from captured days later, she sent two more British vessels to the bottom. With-in three days she had sunk four vessels there.

She was accompanied by the Hamburg-American steamer Markoman-nia as a collier. The Markomannie was sunk Oct. 15, off Sumatra, by a British cruiser. The Emden sank three British steamers in the Indian Ocean on Sept. 14. Sept. 22 she appeared off Madras and shelled the city, extinguishing her lights and disappearing when the forts replied. Then she renewed her activity in the vicinity of Rangoon, where more British vessels fell prey to her. Again she disappeared and was not heard from until she turned up at Penang. After the success at Penang, she was over-taken by a British cruiser, but being the faster was able to escape. Two store ships accompanying her were left behind, and the British cruiser captured one and sank the other.

The Emden had a complement of 361 men. Her armement consisted of 10 4.1-inch guns, eight 5-pounder and four machine guns. She also was equipped with two submerged 17.7 torpedo tubes. The cruiser was launched in 1908, displaced 3600 tons, was 387 feet long and had a beam of LONDON, Nov. 10.-It was officially announced in London today that the German cruiser Emden, "the terror of the Eastern seas," had been driven ashore and burned in the Indian Ocean. The losses among the officers and crew of the Emden are reported to have been very heavy.

The Emden was destroyed by the Australian cruiser Sydney. She was driven ashore on an island of the Cocos, or Keeling group, southwest of Java in the Indian Ocean.

The Sydney sighted the Emden yesterday morning. With superior speed she at once closed in and gave battle. The German boat could not escape. There was a running fight, at the end of which the Emden, burning from the shells of the Australian boat, was beached. The casualties on the Sydney were three men killed and 15 wounded.

A dispatch from Tokio says that reports reaching there are to the effect that the Captain and most of the crew of the Emden were saved, and that previous to the engagement, the Emden cut the British cable connecting the Cocos Islands with the outside

"This search resulted, Oct. 30, in the Koenigsberg being discover by H. M. S. Chatham, Capt. Sidney R. Drury-Lowe, hiding in shoal water about six miles up the Rufiji River, opposite Mafia Island, German East Africa. Owing to a greater draught, the Chatham could not reach the crew of the Koenigsburg has been landed and is intrenched on the banks of the river. "Both these intrenchments and the Koenigsberg herself have been bombarded by the Chatham, but owing to the dense palm groves amid which the ship lies, it is not possible to estimate the damage done. Pending operations for her capture or destruction, effective steps have been taken to block the Koenigsberg by sinking colliers in the only navigable channel to the river, and she is now imprisoned and unable to do any further harm. The fast vessels which have been searching for her are thus released for other service.

Ships of Five Countries Searched for Emden.

'Another large combined operation by fast cruisers against the German Cruiser Emilen has been for some time in progress.' In this search, which has covered an immense area, the British cruisers have been aided by French, Russian and Japanese vessels, working in harmony. The Australian warships mielbourne and Sydney also were included in these movements.

"Yesterday morning news was received that the Emden, which had been ompletely lost to sight after action with the Russian cruiser Jemtchug, had arrived at Keeling, or Cocos, Island and landed an armed party to destroy and wireless station. Here she was caught and forced ot fight by the Austra lian cruiser Sydney, Capt. John Glossop,

"A sharp action took place in which the Sydney suffered the less of hree men killed and afteen wounded. The Emden was driven ashere and burned. Her losses in personnel are reported as very heavy. All possible saistance is being given to the survivors by the various ships which have been dispatched to the scene.

The Germans, according to information available here, are concentrating all their forces for a final attack in the vicinity of Ypres. The afternoon of Nov. 7, they almost succeeded in surrounding the city as a result of attacks from the southwest and northwest. These engagements, which have caused some of the severest losses of the war, have been fought over flat and muddy ground, which gives no opportunity for intrenching. The Germans, in this fighting in Flanders, have made use of regiments composed of volunteers recruited from the best classes of Berlin society. Their officers are men of high standing.

London, Nov. 10.—The fog, which, in the last few days, has hampered military operations along the Aisne, seems to have blotted out also, so far as the receipt of news here is concerned, the entire zone of continental fighting. The direction in which German reinforcements are being moved, whether to the east or to the west, continues to be a prolific source of discussion which is not likely to be settled until the full extent of the Russian operations along the German border is known.

The phenomenal speed of the Russian advance excites the wonder and admiration of British observers, some of whom believe that the whole operation must be a gigantic cavalry raid, as they are sure the Russian infantry and artillery could never move so fast, as the reports reaching London indicate, over the inadequate roads of Russian Poland.

The region around Ypres is the scene of the greatest activity, as the Germans of the greatest activity. mans apparently wish to take possession of the territory between La Basse and Nieuport, which is considered of great trategical importance.

Aisne Operations Important.

Gen. Berthau, writing in the Petit Journal, considers the allies' advance on the right bank of the Aisne, together with the occupation of Soupir, Chavonne and Vailly of prime importance. This means that the high plateau, including the Shemin-Des Dames, has proba-bly been occupied and will give the allies the hotly contested position on the plateau of Vregny, northeast of Sois-sons, which is believed to be the key o the Aisne situation. This plateau nce taken, can easily be held, as it is riss-crossed with ravines through which flow tributaries of the Aisne. The neights from this point to Craonne are believed to be held by the allies.

In Alsace, the Germans have suffered marked defeat, as their attacks to a marked defeat, as their attacks to gain the vantage point on St. Marie Heights have been fruitless. The situation here, it is stated, becomes more serious every day, as the only available roads running east and west are in possession of the allies, and unless the Germans succeed in breaking through and joining the main army their only alternative will be a retreat.

N Oct. 9 Antwerp fell. Just a month has then passed since German finally succeeded in crushing the last effective resistance in Belgium. Coincident with the fall of Antwerp, there was forecast, and ward Paris and along the shore of the Channel.

The first step in this operation was the capture of Ostend. In the days following the fall of Antwerp, the storm-beaten little Belgian army slipped south, west of the Scheldt and along the Dutch frontier, the British troops at Ostend joined them, and the retreat to France began.

Meantime in France, the great adhad mounted steadily from the Oise, across the Somme, toward the Lys. Begun as an attempt to strike at the standing along the Aisne, it had failed in its purpose, but had been continued as a movement to relieve the Belgians at Antwerp, and after Antwerp fell, to rescue the retreating Situation Was Puzzle.

At the precise moment of the German success at Antwerp, the situa-tion in the northwest corner of France, between Arras and the Straits of Dover, was wholly con-fused. From the Oise to Arras, the line of both armies was well defined. But north and west, the scanty reports of the official bureaus shed little real light. Yet it was clear that the Germans had endeavored to drive a wedge of cavalry from Lille toward Calais, and separate the retreating Belgians from the French and British troops moving north. Thus, while Ostend was still uncaptured, the dispatches from Berlin and Paris alike described sharp cavalry engagements well within French territory, south of Armentieres and west of the Lys. Presently it became clear that the allies had been able to mass superior forces in this region, and the German wedge was extracted, the German wedge was extracted, the German armies steadily pressed back away from the Channel, east of Arras and Armentieres, back upon Lille. At the same time, other allied troops, moving north, orossed the Belgian line and joined hands with the retreating Belgians.

Thus, about the time the Germans, who had taken Antwerp and moved south, were approaching the French frontier, they were brought to a complete halt before Ypres, and west-ward along the Yser River, through Dixmude, to the channel. In this operation, the hitherto ill-defined left of the allies took shape, and was disclosed resting solidly upon the sea at Nisuport, where the Belgians held

Having failed to prevent the june tion of the Belgian and allied troops, the Germans now undertook a terrific drive along the seacoast from the north bank of the Yser at the French Channel ports of Dunkirk and Ca-lais, which face England and might conceivably serve as bases for a sub-marine and Zeppelin attack upon the

This drive, it now appears, came within an ace of success. The Germans were able to force the passage of the Yeer; they did make progress along the beach and across the dunes. But after terrific righting, two circumstances combined to check them. First, a British fleet, by shelling the shore, forced the Germans to abandon their positions before Nieuport; second, in the moment of supreme peril, the Belgians opened the sluices and flooded the whole Yser River front. As a result the German drive along the west was checked and ultimately abandoned.

Having failed here, the next attempt was made farther inland and along the Ypres-Arras front. Here, for more than 10 days, fighting of the most desperate character has been going on. Could the Germans break the allied line here, they would drive a wedge between the Belgians and the allies, open a road to the Channel and threaten the whole left of the allies, which would have to swing back until it rested on the Channel, and the Germans would hold a line comparatively straight from Metz, by Rheims and the Alsne, to Abbeville on the Channel. This line would be much shortand they would be able to menace England, and possibly to close the Straits of Dover by mines and heavy

But up to the present moment the Germans have failed to make any real progress between Ypres and Arras. Facing them now is the whole British expeditionary. army, moved up from the Sois-sons trenches, the Indian contingent and a considerable territorial force, the first fruits of Kitchener's labors. Fresh French troops have also been pushed up to support the British.

Gains Only Local. Of the determination of the Germans there has been no doubt from the start. Along the Yser, and now before Ypres, they are displaying a reckless courage, contempt for death, a disdain for cost in human life which has not been approached in the war. Gains, local gains, they have made. On the whole, the allied line has recoiled appreciably in the past three weeks, but not in such fashion as to make any real change in the situation.

Now it is affirmed from Paris and London that the Germans are making one supreme effort to burst through. Such an effort is burst through. Such an effort is easily explicable. Elsewhere, from the Vosges to the Somme, the German campaign in France has fallen dead, become a dull siege operation in which the allies are at least as forward-pushing as the Germans.

If the present operations succeed, the Germans will be masters of all Northwestern France, of Flanders, Artods, Picardy. With Belgium wholly in their hands, and the Channel ports, they can well bring their great offensive operations to a halt and stand inexpungable on the ground now occupied in the west, while they entrate their efforts on Rus-falls, then the Germans must here after defend a right flank from Noyon to Antwerp, requiring many thousands of men by reason of its extent, open to attack from the coast ports to which the new British armies will presently be directed. There can then be little prospect of diverting men to meet the new storm on the eastern frontier.

if Russian pressure continues, it will presently be necessary for the Germans to draw back from the Aisne to the Meuse, abandon the great and pointing at Paris. Such a re-tirement would greatly shorten their front, release thousands of men, but such a retirement would mean a con-fession that this blow at France had failed decisively.

It is easy, then, to see why the Germans attach such great impor-tance to the present operations between Ypres and Arras. It is easy remaining ounce of strength to achieve their purpose. But it is quite as plain that the struggle cannot now be prolonged indefinitely, in view of the Eastern situation. Obviously, a real crisis in German military fortune has been reached and the next few days may decide the second phase in the great war.

The army, he said, "has proved itself not so contemptible an engine of war as some were disposed to consider it." Earl Kitchener, who was clad in service khaki, reminded his hearers again of his belief that the war would be a long one, and said he would need more men, and still more men.

Premier Asquith said England would never sheath her sword until Belgium had been compensated, France secured against aggression and Prussian militarism destroyed. As a fourth task for the allies, he added that Turkey's power must be wiped out, not only in Europe but in Asia. Winsten Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, said the navy, despite its losses, was stronger than when the war began.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A correspondent of the Chronicle at the Belgian front telegraphs that advance patrols of Belgians have penetrated to Ostend, which means that the coast line, from Dunkirk to Nisuport and Ostend, is relieved from the menace of the past two weeks. He continues: "Ypres is now the storm center, and after a 10-days' battle of guns, which was beyond all doubt the bloodiest episode in this war, the Germans are endeavoring to repair their shattered strength by bringing up every available man and gun for another bout of slaughter.

"We just wait for death,' said a Belgian officer last night. It is war without soul or adventure. In the early days, when I scoured the country with a party of motor scouts, there was some sport in it. But now, in the business around Ypres, it is the gun that does all the business, heaving out shells delivering death in a merciless way.

The session at which the East St. Louis Council last night repassed the water franchise repeal ordinance was enlivened by several verbal tilts between Mayor Chamberlin and City Clerk Griffin. The Mayor took exception to the City Clerk's pronunciation, and the City Clerk, having for 13 years been a Trolley League baseball umpire, was not accustomed to having his pronunciation questioned. Granite City Also Protests Says Germany's Fighting Men Are Outclassed by the English and French. Special Cable to the Post-Dispate and New York World.

LONDON, Nov. 10.-Capt. Norman G. Thwaites, for the past three years a member of the staff of the New York World and at one time a member of the Post-Dispatch staff, but now holding a mmission in the Fourth (Royal Irish) Oragoon Guards, has arrived in London after having been severely wounded i a flerce fight along the Belgian frontier, Nov. 3. He passed unscathed through the battle of the Aisne. Their horses having been ordered five miles to the rear, Capt. Thwaites and his men went on duty in the trenches arm with rifles as infantrymen. They had been there for three days and three nights when a German attack brought Thwaites down with a spent bullet through the chin and throat, just missing the jugular vein.

Immediately afterward a shell burst over the position where Thwaites lay. He was buried under debris, but his men dug him out with their hands and when the squadron had been relieved and he had reported his position, he was taken to the rear. Then he knew no more until he found himself recovering conclousness in a turnip field, where he had fainted from loss of blood. Lying near the road Thwaites was so picked up by a motor ambulance and sent on to London. He is now at the Officers' Hospital, in Mayfair. Though his wound is severe, it is not likely to prove dangerous. Thwaites is perfectly cheery and full of confidence that the allies will win. Thinks Allies Better Fighter

Except as to their artillery, Capt. Thwaites declares that the Germans ar outclassed as fighters by the English and French troops. The British artil-lery, he thinks, is more destructive than the German, but he declares that it is quite impossible to convey any adequate idea of the deafening, stupefying effect of the heavy German shell fire. The ambulance and commissariat serv ce of the British forces cannot be beaten in Capt. Thwaites' opinion, while the spirit of the men remains superb. The Fourth Dragoons suffered heavily throughout the fighting that precede the wounding of Capt. Thwaites.

Capt. Thwaites, who is about 42 year ld, was a veteran of the Boer War, was a Lieutenant on the reserve list of the British army. Cabling from New York and taken aboard a train bound for was at once called to London. Having done notable work in attracting university men to the colors, he was given ommission in the Fourth Dragoo Suards. He was sent to the front on sept. 15 and won his captaincy after aving passed through some of the heav est fighting in the North of France.

Fine Suits and Coats

At Prices Which Afford Savings of 1/3 and More Usual $39.75 to $79.50 Garments $29.75 and $39.75

The balmy October days brought many cancellations and left thousands of garments on the manufacturers' hands. We were in the market at an opportune time and took advantage of many extraordinary buying chances.

As a result, many of the season's best selling numbers which would ordinarily be marked at their regular prices at this time are offered to you at great savings.

In addition, we were fortunate in securing the sample lines of three noted coat manufacturers and two of the best known suit designers-including garments which sell regularly as high at $79.50.

Many of these were included in last week's Sample Sale, and are now marked still lower-at $29.75 and $39.75 of the well-known "Admiralty" Serges-our own, direct importation. These are fast-dyed and shrunk and may be had in both navy and black. They are noted for their wonderful wearing qualities and derive their name from the fact that they are worn by the sailors of the British navy. This, in itself, is the best of recommendations, because any material used by either the army or navy is submitted to the most severe tests before being adopted.

Anniversary Sale of "Admiralty" Serges

These serges will not change color and may be washed in hot water with soap or soda. For beauty, durability and color they are by far the most satisfactory fabric you can buy, and, best of all, we are offering this lot, while it lasts, at special prices because of the Anniversary Sale.

S IR JOHNSTON FORBES-ROB-ERTSON'S "Hamlet" is not new to St. Louisans, but the fact that, excepting next Saturday's matinee, we shall not have a chance to see it again made the performance of it last night as the opening play of his farewell en agement notable.

Every star who essays "Hamlet" has his own special interpretation of the part. In all other roles of Shakspeare's creation there is a tradition of ideality at which all actors strive. In other at which all actors strive. In other words, if all were perfect in their read-ing of the lines and equally graceful in polse, precisely the same vizualization would be achieved by each, allowing, of course, for differences of face and fig-ure. Not so with Hamlet, all because every actor feels called upon to predicate his performance upon the theory that the melancholy Prince of Denmark either was positively insane or as positively sane. The result is an infinite variety of interpretations of the role, most of them fantastic and absurd to real students of Prince Ham-

It is not within the purview of this review to go into a psychological dis-quisition on the mental processes of the greatest of all Shakspeare's studies of characters, but it is sufficient to say that Forbes-Robertson's version has a emblance of sanity and reality that rarely is found in a production of "Hamlet." The great English playe and not as an advocate, bent upon making the world accept his own impression of Hamlet's character. He sets wn play, leaving the audience to its Forbes-Robertson sees in Hamlet a very sane though highly nervous young man so obsessed by the tremendous import of his mission of avenging his father's death that he does not hesitate to sac rifice-albeit reluctantly-his love for the fair Ophelia. His seeming madness but part of his cunning scheme to bring his father's murder to his uncle's door and to smite his royal mother's conscience for so soon forgetting the man who had made her Queen. And this is the way the play comes across the foot lights from Forbes-Robertson and his ompany BECAUSE SHAKESPEARE WROTE IT THAT WAY and not because Forbes-Robertson is engaged in exploiting his own special brand of 'Hamlet." How much better and how much more refreshing it is for its very aturalness.

Supported by a Strong Company. Sir Johnston yields to no actor of today in the reading of his lines, combining a deep scholarly interpretation with one of the most winning voices in all the world. A pathetic, moving Ophelia is Miss Laura Cowie, whose mad scene was a performance that even hose who have seen our own Julia Marlowe's will remember with keenest leasure. Ranking well up with the star's work was that of Ian Robertson as Polonius. All the other members of the company are finished in their parts, evidence of having been selected by the star so there might not be any alse notes struck in his farewell. Monday's night's audience only filled the house to about three-fourths its capacity. Tonight we shall see Sir Johnston as Dick Heldar in a dramatization of Kipling's "The Light That

The occasion spoke for itself and, if my own judgment of its significance is not at fault, it marks the definite materialization of new conditions in this city that are full of the richest promise for the future.

Three genuinely worthy artists leathe San Carlo company in its submit al of proof that excellent grand opert moderate prices is not by any mean impossible of attainment. These three were Florencio Constantino, the "gues star" of the night, in the tenor role of the Duke of Mantua; Angelo Antola, baritone, in the title part, and Edvige Vaccari, coloratura soprano, as Gilda Ill-fated daughter of the Jester and delpless victim of his profligate master. Upon these three figures falls all the arden of "Rigoletto's" intensely dra atic story and the major responsibilty for the success or failure of this ory in its lyric shaping as music Constantino acquitted himself with fine distinction. He is a good actor and a better singer. He brought to last night's portrayal of the Duke all the heartless gayety, the sensual selfishness, the in-evitable fickleness demanded for its framatic picturing.

He sang its several great tenor stroins with exquisite certainty of effect and purity of tone, revealing alike the superficial tenderness and the all-dominating animal passion that must needs be voiced if the portrait properly is to be completed in song.

He looked the part to the life; as graceful, supple, fascinating in sheer odily movement and the suggestion of hot-blooded strength, as a tiger-and also with the same suggestion of cruelty and ruthlessness. He won-as the big audience unstintedly testified-a nemorable triumph, dominating the story's action at all moments of his cresence on the stage. This, too, without diminishing the vital appeal of the evening's title role character, in which Antola, to my thinking, did the best work of his many essayals efore St. Louis audiences.

This typically Italian baritone is an of first-rank distinction. voice lends itself unreservedly to the building of the dramatic aspect of his roles. He employs it to the fullest veep of its emotional range.

It becomes, under his handling, a oble factor in the expression nood-mocking, cynical, dissolute in the story's earlier phases; awed and portent-fearing under the curse of Montenerone; profoundly tender in his home-contact with his beloved daughter; appalled and then vengefully blood-lusting in the moments shortly following his discovery that Gilda has been betrayed by the Duke; unforgetably tragic in the black final act that ends with his one cry of soul-stricken horror when he confronts so terribly the dead body of Gilds where he had hoped to feast his eyes on the Duke's bloody corpss. Both as an actor and singer, Antola on Monday evening accomlished a greatly moving realization of this pitiful role, one of the most purely and deeply tragic in all opera. And as a result, he compelled an even division of hopors with Constantino himself.

The Gilda of Mme. Vaccari's sub-mitting was a sweetly girlish and appealing figure. It was played along very simple lines, which is eminently proper, Vaccari attempting only what is called for by the story itself, the drawing of a portrait of youthful inocence and complete surrender to love. Her voice, owing to obvious ner-vousness at first, was inclined to a somewhat shrill edge in the upper register, but revealed itself more satisfyingly as the action of the man will probably relieve Berry at the other wing.

The line seems to have weathered the storm of Saturday all right and will probably line up intact.

Who will do the punting, Saturday, is still a mystery. When Lewis, the Pikers' only real booter, was injured, Potthoff took up the burden. In Saturday's game, "Boise" got off four kicks for an average of 31 yards. Thomas, the Hilliken booter, toed 10 for an average of about 35 yards. However, Potthoff is a great deal better than any punter on the marcon squad and with him out of the game, Coach Edmunds is at a quandary concerning the punting.

State, 20—6.

That, therefore, Lehigh is two or three touchdowns better than Harvard.

At this point Dope collapsed on the stand and had to be carried back to the hospital, where he again lies in a critical condition.

Nebraska is looking around for some huskier witness to teatify to the merits of its eleven before proceeding with the case.

Coach Edmunds is at a quandary concerning the punting.

Nevertheless Nebraska has some football team, and would read the punting.

Can't Replace "Pass" Pair.

Milford and Potthoff are the only forward pass the ball accurately out of the game, the Pikers' open play, the style by which they won from St. Louis Saturday, and the only department in which they outclassed the Billikens, will se up in smoke.

Garry Herrmann spent the day as usual in Chicago, conterring with Charley Weeghman.

Cornhuskers, World's Champions?

NY convictions that Michigan and Harvard have respective monopo A lies of Western and Eastern football honors had best be kept scaled and in hiding while passing through Nebraska, in the vicinity of the State University.

Not only do the Cornhuskers NOT admit that Michigan is the best team in the West, but they have positive conviction that Nebraska has the best eleven in the world, Harvard, Yale and Princeton all considered.

To prove it they subpena Good Old Dope, still bandaged from his recent attempts to stop the wheels of base ball progress in an unanticipated dispersion of the countries which were expected to take part in the big Berlin games of 1916. Depleted exchequers and a heavy death roll among the athletes are expected to make the games an impossibility, even should hostilities soon close.

G. O. D., under direct examination, is made to state the following allaged facts: That Michigan is the best team in the West, except Nebraska. That Michigan defected the Michigan Aggles, 3-0, while Nebraska trimmed the same team, 24-0.
That Harvard defeated Michigan 7-0.

That, therefore, Nebraska is three touchdowns better than Michigan.
That Harvard is the best eleven shown in the East.

That Nebraska is two touch-downs better than Harvard. That, therefore, Nebraska is the time, East or West. Q. E. D. Under cross-examination, however, G. O. D. spilled the beans. Dope admitted the following damaging facts: That Dartmouth defeated Tufts, 62-0, while Harvard's best was 13 points against Tufts' 6.

That, therefore, Dartmouth is eight touchdowns better than Harvard.

That Penn State tied Harvard, 13—13, while Lehigh defeated Penn State, 20—6.

NEVERTHELESS Nebraska has some football team, and would prebably give Michigan a reliable run for its money, finishing up only a touch-down or two in the rear.

There is still a good chance that Illinois is a better eleven than either Nebraska or Michigan, although this cannot be demonstrated this season. The fact that Michigan and Harvard were not extending themselves in certain contests this season has confused the situation, out in Ne-

Kicking Game Not Dying.

Kicking Game Not Dying.

FOOTBALL, so long a misnomer when applied to the college pastime of other days, then distinctly a carrying same, has deserved its name for six or seven years past, during which field goals, goals from placement, goals from touchdowns, on-side boots and defensive kicking have figured prominently in the deciding of contests.

This year, however, it was feared the forward pass would do away with much of the kicking, and that the running game would take the place of field-goal booting. Thus, the FOOT part of football again would have been minimized.

But defensive kicking is still a very, very large factor of the college sport. Statistics of the Washington-St. Louis U. game indicate that kicking alone saved the St. Louis U. men from a worse defeat.

Where Punting Counts.

THE Billikens' punting netted the team 350 yards in 10 kicks, while team sow parts in 10 kicks, while the forward passing of W. U. resulted in 182 yards, for 18 attempts, a net terri-torial advantage in favor of punting of 198 yards. This makes it appear that a strong kicker is of quite as much ad-vantage to an eleven as a forward pass

Comparison along this line is not fair, however, for the forward pass is seldom used in deefnsive terriis seldom used in decinaive terri-tory. One hundred and fifty-two yards gained in attacking territory and employed at opportune times would certainly mean more than 350 yards booted under stress in defensive

Just the same, the eleven which minimizes its bloking game, is making the mistake of its life, if it thinks the forward pass and surprise plays are going to make up the deficit.

Sir William Osler, one of the foremost f living medical men, formerly of Johns lopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Pro-cessor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 49:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. • • In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime saits. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Why Is Oleo Colored?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In your editorial of ...t. 19, under caption "An Odlous 'Suppression' Tax," you seem to have lost sight of the fact that the real object in imposing a tax of 10 cents per pound on colored oleomargarine or adulterated butter was for the purpose preventing the fraudulent sale of same. There is probably not a creamery man or butter dealer in the country but that would be glad to see elecmargarine sold at 10 or 15 cents per pound as oleomargarine, but they object to seeing it sold at 30 to 40 cents per pound as butter, with an enormous profit to the dealer, or rather to the manufacturer who mixes and colors it in the back end of some old filthy stable or outhouse, charging the consumer a price approximating, if not fully as high as, the price for which he could pur-

In your editorial you seek to impress upon your readers the fact that oleomargarine is just as good as butter. If this is the case, why does the manufacturer try to imitate butter and sell his product as butter? It is true that oleomargarine properly branded and sold to the poor contingent price commensurate with its cost would be 10 cents tax on uncolored oleo, and there is no reason why the poor classes should not buy the product at 10 or 15 cents per pound. The color the people. does not change the taste or quality of the mix-ture, but it does make it possible for the unscrupulous dealer to sell it for and as butter, charging a price as high, or almost as high, as the legitimate dealer is asking for real builter of this 40,000 pounds, we may easily picture to Just in what way do you imagine this will nelp ourselves that about that many persons, mostly the poor class?

BERNARD BUTTS IN.

Bernard Shaw, who is noted for standing on his head and looking at the world and thinking the world is upside down, was bound to be heard from on the subject of what America ought to do in the European crisis. Almost every other English writer had enlightened us and statesmen ing towards great, rich, peaceful America for help had appealed to us. Bernard alone was silent. If he could have been conspicuous by his silence Don't dismiss this condition with the idea that possibly he would have remained silent. Who likewise ignoring him. Mr. Shaw speaks. solemnly. He advises the President.

Mr. Shaw is the friend of Belgium. It is a beautiful disinterested friendship. He is so fond of Belgium that he wants the United States to demand that the Germans quit fighting in Belgium-(of course he mentions Britain and France, but their willingness to quit fighting in Belgium if the Germans will may be taken for granted). Here is the great Bernard's solemn request to our little Woodrow:

I petition you to invite the neutral Powers confer with the United States of America for the purpose of requesting Great Britain France and Germany to withdraw from the soil of Belgium and fight out their quarrel on their own territories. However the sympa-thies of the neutral states may be divided and whatever points now at issue between the belligerent Powers may be doubtful, there !s one point on which there can be neither division nor doubt, and that is that the belligerent armies have no right to be in Belgium, much less to fight in Belgium and involve the innocent inhabitants of that country in their Grant that Belgium in her extreme peril made one mistake. She called to her aid the Powers of the Entente alone. ing on the whole world of kindly men she ald have called on America, too, and it is hard'to see how you could in honor have disregarded that call. But if Belgium says nothing but only turns her eyes dumbly towards you whilst you look at the red ruin in which her villages, her heaps of slain, her monuments and treasures are being hurled by her friends and enemies alike, are you any the less bound to speak out than if Belgium had asked you to send a million soldiers.

Unless we promptly tell Germany to get out of Belgium and send over a million men to help the Allies we are threatened with being thought cowardly and immoral by the great Belgian-or is it British?-humorist. Really this is Shaw's masterpiece, the funniest thing he ever wrote.

CLEANLINESS PAYS.

One lesson to be learned from the present outbreak of the foot and mouth disease is the need for thorough cleanliness in the handling and stabling of cattle and hogs, who are the chief sufferers from the disease. Almost without exception, diseases of this kind are induced and spread by filth.

Disinfection of stables and stockyards after the disease has broken out is a sorry substitute for

SOCRATES ON THE NEW COMPLAINT BOARD.

Socrates: Well, Polemarchus; I don't suppose you have been before the new Complaint Board yet?

Polemarchus: No. Socrates: However, as soon as they don't sprinkle the street right in front of your house or you have some other reason to complain, you will get around.

Polemarchus: No doubt. Socrates: Not that anything would probably be done about it, of Polemarchus: Of course not.

Socrates: You shall merely want to get whatever it is off your chest to speak, before somebody who will hear you out. Polemarchus: That is about all.

Socrates: The members of the Complaint Board, being paid for it ill hear you out. Polemarchus: I suppose so.

Socrates: Probably nobody else would.

Polemarchus: I am sure of it. Socrates: Not meaning, of course, that there are not times when lmost anyone has a just grievance.

Polemarchus: No.

Socrates: Only-Polemarchus: That is it.

Socrates: You are very knowing, my dear Polemarchus. Only tha ost of us do love to kick about nothing at all, and usually get all the elief we need with doing no more than telling someone what it is ails us Polemarchus: Precisely. Socrates: The opportunity here afforded to tell it to an authoritativ ody in the form of a speech ought to be exceptionally efficacious. Polemarchus: I don't doubt it.

Socrates: Probably, with an extra oratorical effort before three prop rly constituted tribunes, one would not feel in the average case that anything further should be done about the matter at all. Polemarchus: It is very likely.

Socrates: There is, too, another very good purpose which the Comlaint Board will serve.

Glaucon: What is that, Socrates? Socrates: It will serve to show us who it is does the kicking.

Glaucon: True. Socrates: After the novelty of the thing has worn off for the most of us, there shall remain only those whose kicking may be said to be Glaucon: The board will have plenty to do, at that. Socrates: I think so. I went through all the bridge bond complaints Polemarchus: It is going to be interesting, anyway.

Socrates: So it is, Polemarchus. Now let us all casually wande nto some steam-heated hall.

Leo Breaks Loose.

WHEN Preston, the express messen ger, received the hor many ger, received the box, read the shipping directions and essayed o comply with the request to give "ar livery," he said unprintable things.

"A thing like this ought to go in a cattle car," he declared.

Pulling a big wisp of hay from a bale, he thrust it through an opening in the box. "Here, Billy, wake up!"

At the fourth jab of Preston's stick, roar came from the box, which trem-bled as if a small tornado were raging roar, a crash of splintered wood, and the box flew apart like an eggsheil when the hatched chick steps out. There, in the full light of the car, his great head held alort, his long tall swishing uneasily, his wide jaws apart and his sleek sides heaving with his quick breath, stood King Leo. For the first time he felt the tingle of the hot his fathers to battle and to death leaped through his veins, Preston quickly sought refuge behind a stack of apple boxes, piled nearly to ceiling at the rear end of the car. At the other end, just over his bunk, were his rifle and revolver; but the blood of combat. The thrill that urged panther stood between. It was clearly evident to the messen-ger that something was going to happen. The panther would undoubtedly put an end to him, the oldest, and—he had hoped-the most faithful messenger in the Great Western's employ. It looked to Preston as a pretty rough ter mination for an honorable career.

King eyed the messenger suspiciously as if inclined to believe him responsible for the whole miserable blunder. He stalked down the car, lifted himself to his haunches and sniffed the apple boxes. When he crouched as if to leap, Preston drew his knife, determined to

But King suddenly changed his mind and, turning, strode majestically toward the other end. The mesenger gave a long sigh of relief.

Bandits Halt the Train.

WHEN the panther reached the farther end of the car, the train came to an abrupt stop, with all brakes set. At the same in stant there was a loud pounding on the side door of the express, the shouts of deep-voiced men, and a rattle of pistol shots. "Open up here!" commanded a voice at the door "Open up, and be quick or about it or we'll dynamite the car!"

Preston understood. The train was in the hands of highwaymen. The robbers were after the express money, and were, no doubt, aware of the big hipment of gold in the safe.

"Open the door!" the voice commanded a third time. Then followed low murmur of preparation, the scratch of a match on the car wall, and the scurrying of heavy feet. In a moment there was a terrific crash, the flying of splintered timber and broken iron, a confusion of express packages and bundles, and the dens smoke of burned powder.

Louder and more terrible than the explosion of the dynamite was the roar of King. Wounded and bruised, up and down endeavoring to extricate himself from eneath the pile of apple boxes.

A ragged hole was blown in the car, and through this a voice of com-mand came: "Toss out the money box or we'll come in after it!"

A messenger's sworn duty is to protect the treasure entrusted to him. The bronze badge on Preston's jacket was proof that he had been tried and was not found wanting. The knowledge that the express safe was in danger drove all fear of the panther from the messenger's mind. He squirmed from beneath the heap of boxes and waded through the lit-ter of packages and bundles to the frond end of the car. Midway he passed King, but the great cat was too intent upon the hole in the car to notice Preston. "Crawl in, Bill," said a voice, and a too intent upon the hole in the car to notice Preston.

"Crawl in, Bill," said a voice, and a masked face appeared through the hole. King leaped across the car and struck with both paws at the intruder. There was a howl of pain, and the man dropped heavily from the hole. King crouched to one side, roaring madly.

Preston found his rifle and stuck the barrel through the Iron barred window. Two men were standing near that train, popping their revelvers promiscuously to keep curious heads inside car windows. The messenger leveled his rifle and fired three shots. Again King roared as he furiously awaited the second appearance of the masked face.

But it did not appear. The reception given the one man who was rash enough to attempt an entrance was not desired by any of his comrades. Confused by the roar of the unknown monster and the rifle fire from the window, the robbers retreated in haste down the embankment, carrying the wounded man between them. Mounting their horses, the entire band dashed away, with a wild clatter of hoofs, down the canyon.

The messenger clambered out the window and closed the bars behind him, just as the conductor came rushing forward excitedly.

"You did nobly, Preston," said the train chief admiringly. "The company owes you another bronze tag."

"They don't owe it to me—hear that?" the messenger replied as King emitted an angry roar.

"My God, what is it?" the conductor gasped.

"It's a llon," said the messenger.

"He's as big as an elephant and has a voice like the bass end of a calliope—put 'im on board the train for a goat. It was he that stood off the gang. Get back in the car? Not me. I think I'll take the rear Pullman."

At Redding the conductor received a message from Markley. "My pet banther was put aboard tonight's Overland by mistake" the message said. "Hold till I arrive."

"Please hurry." the conductor wired in return, "we need the car."

Noted Medical Teacher Declares Allies Are Fighting America's Battles.

Special Correspondence of the New York World and the Pest-Dispatch. LONDON, Oct. 22.—Sir William Osler, regius professor of medicine at Oxford, and former professor of medicine at Mc-Bill University, Montreal, and head of the department of medicine at Johns Hopkins, a few days ago talked about the spirit with which Canada is entering into the war, and the point of view from which the United States she study and understand the situation.

william is a native of Canada.
"I think the United States understands and admires the peculiar tie which, in spite of a few formal and legislative bonds, fastens the Anglo-Saxon countries together. The United States knows, I believe, that the allies are fighting her battle as well as their own. If Germany is victorious and puts upon the face of Europe the imprint of the iron heel of militarism, the task of playing the role of political big brother to the Angle-Saxon peoples of the Western Hemisphere will be the des

"She may seek to sidestep this destiny; she may begrudge the sacrifices and the military efforts which such a responsibility will carry with it, but I am convinced of this-her own highest interests and the deeper feelings of her people will make clear that hers may be the task of conserving Anglo-Saxon liberty—that government of the people, by the people, for the people, may not perish from the earth.

Adjusting Hand Needed.

"This does not mean that I think the Inited States should intervene now or in the near future. I see no need for it now, and I trust none will develop. The allies, I think, can fight and win sues of their own wars. And the adusting hand of a great neutral power, when the fate of the world trembles in "The political ideas and aspirations of the United States cannot be other than akin to those of all other Angio-Saxon ountries, and what would be her posiion if the German sword broke up hroughout this British Empire the ma hinery through which their ideas have expressed themselves?

"I think that the enlightened public opinion of the United States appreciates what this position would be, and feels closer to England and closer to Canada than ever before since 1776."

MUNICIPAL ABBATOIR SUGGESTED BY LAZARUS He Would Have All Meat Sold, in

City Prepared at Public Slaughter-Ho-se. Sam Lazarus, President of the City council, today submitted to President, Kinsey of the Public Service Board, a suggestion that the board prepare an ordinance providing for the crection of a municipal slaughter house in which all meat sold in St. Louis should be slaugh-tered. Kinsey agreed to present it to the Speaker at Convention Sava Women Will Try 'o Force Expression by the Party.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 10 .- Th immediate object of the Southern States Woman's Suffrage conference is to ake the Democratic party declare for votes for women" in its next national platform, according to Miss Kate Gor-don of New Orleans, who spoke at the convention of the Southern organization at its opening session here today.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

TUESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 10, 1914.

New 3-Year Issue Is Quoted at 1031/2; Idle Cars Show an Increase.

By Leased Wire From the New York
Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The Evening
Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"There were a good many incidents in the day's news besides the destruction of the German ship Emden, to interest the financial markets. The overshadowing operation was represented by the arrangements under way by the banks to prepare for the taking effect of the new cash reserve requirements of the Federal reserve

requirements of the Federal reserve act.

"Introduction of the new system will call for a radical readjustment here and with the withdrawal of a good share of the trust companies deposits from the banks, there will be a general shifting of accounts for a time at least. Just what influence this will have remains to be seen; there is reason to believe that with the release of reserve money, money rates will become easier and the supply of loanable funds will enlarge.

"The striking events of the day was the new low record made for German exchange, actual sales being made at 87% for sight drafts on Berlin; the further increase in the surplus of idle cars, the fortnightly figures showing a surplus of 170,096 cars on Nov. 1, which was an increase of 18,114 cars, and the largest for this period since 1907; the pronounced strength reflected by New York City notes, the 3-year issue touching 103½, the highest price ever reached, and the fresh withdrawal of $1,600,000 gold for Ottawa. In connection.

"The showing of unfilled orders by

"The showing of unfilled orders by the Steel Trust, with a decrease of 126,520 tons for the month, attracted to 126,520 tons, The total at the end of October, 3,381,097 tons, compared with 4,513,767 tons at the close of October, 1513,767 tons at the close of October, fected by the sales of exchange against the purchase of merchandise and food-stuffs by various foreign buyers. This was easily the feature in the for-risk insurance. No new prices were quoted here, but advices from London-indicated that the war risk was less costly than it had been.

"Some attention was given to the Washington rumor that Sir George Paish would reach some sort of arrangement with the Federal Reserve Board with reference to the measures necessary to be taken for the safe-guarding the situation and bringing about normal conditions again in the market for international remittances.

"No details were given out as to the character of these negotiations, but the feeling was decidedly hopeful, and it was evident that the operations in the exchange market were based also on the theory that important changes might result from the measures agreed to between the representatives of this Government, the bankers of this city and the London emissaries.

"There was very large buying of the London emissaries.

"There was very large buying of notes, and the business was so extensive as to indicate that the investment houses were handling more orders than they have had at any time for months has?

before long.

"The fact that the issue sold was small contributed to the success of the operation. But the fnarket for all liasses of high-grade municipal securities was strong enough to show that various towns and villages could finance their requirements at this time, if they had the proper securities to of, if they had the proper securities to of, if they had the proper securities to of, if they had the proper securities to of.

Traders give little heed to higher cables, to a falling off in the European visible supply or to predictions of lower freight rates soon on the ocean. An adverse foreign crop summary was also virtually ignored. The opening, which ranged from ½½c off to ½c½c up, was followed by a decline all round. Clear, cool weather that promised larger receipts made the corn market weak. Improved demand from the East, however, helped to check the decline. After starting ½c to ½c lower, prices underwent a slight additional sag.

Oats showed heaviness, the result of the setback in other cereals. A number of tired holders unloaded.

Provisions suffered from lack of support. There was but little selling presume the weak in the contraction of the setback in other cereals.

The Jarr Family

By ROY L. McCARDELL

Can Anyone Beat the Nerve of Mr. Blodger.

HINK the squaw is looking well?" asked Mr. Bernard Blodger of Mrs. Jarr. "The who?" retorted Mrs. Jarr, and she looked out of the window of the little Cackleberry-Blodger home, to see if a Wild West parade were pass-

"The wiff, the squaw, the lady provider!" replied the Cackleberry girls'

"If you mean your wife, say so!" said Mrs. Jarr sharply. "'Squaw!' Wiff! Huh! I'd like to hear Mr. Jarr allude to me in such terms!"
"He would if he dared to join the Society of Splendid and Sagacious Snakes, the Militant Married Man's Movement!" said Mr. Blodger. "Our motto is 'Put Your Wife to Work! And Hiss and Rattle, Brothers! Hiss

And there was so much solicitude in Mr. Blodger's tones that Mrs. Jarr commenced to think perhaps his previous remarks were simply playful eccentricity, and that, after all, he had a true husbandly solicitude.

"Why, I think Mrs. Blodger is looking splendid," replied Mrs. Jarr.
"And strong?" inquired Mr. Blod-ger anxiously. "You do not think she
